

EDUARDO “EDU” A. BOLANOS is Assistant Professor in the Department of English and Applied Linguistics, De La Salle University where he also earned his Ph.D. in Applied Linguistics in 2009 and Diploma in Historical Linguistics in 2006. Prior to his post at De La Salle, Edu was affiliated with the Department of Languages and Literature at St. Scholastica’s College-Manila where he also served as Editor-in-Chief of its research and other publications. He also taught courses in the Ph.D. Reading and Ph.D. Linguistics programs of the Philippine Normal University. Edu has published and presented in national and international avenues in his areas of interests which include metacomprehension, metacognition, bilingualism, sociolinguistics, psycholinguistics, and historical linguistics. He has also conducted a number of seminars and workshops on the aforesaid areas. At present, Edu also serves as board member of the Reading Association of the Philippines (RAP). Aside from the textbooks and instructional materials he has prepared, Edu has also been involved in teacher training particularly in Visayas and Mindanao as part of his outreach activities and has been a consultant in measurement and evaluation, reading, and the use of IT in the classroom. [edubolanos_95@yahoo.com]