

T. Ruanni F. TUPAS is a graduate of the University of the Philippines in Diliman (BA, cum laude, and MA) and the National University of Singapore (Ph.D.) with degrees in English linguistics. He is currently a Senior Lecturer at the Centre for English Language Communication, NUS. He was the 2009 Andrew Gonzalez FSC Distinguished Professorial Chair Holder in Linguistics and Language Education and recently has been nominated to the select group of honorary members of the Linguistic Society of the Philippines for his contributions to Philippine linguistic studies. He is currently Project Director (with KC LEE) of the S$450,000 grant from the Temasek Foundation for a localization project in curriculum development in tertiary institutions in Singapore, the Philippines, Indonesia and Vietnam. He is a member of the Executive Committee of the Singapore Association for Applied Linguistics and is a former Vice President of the Singapore Tertiary English Teachers' Society. Ruanni's work in applied linguistics is anchored in a wide range of social and historical frameworks, including political economy in the study of varieties of English, imperial amnesia and Bourdieu in the study of language policy, and development theory in the study of the roles of mother tongues in society. He grew up in Aklan and currently lives with his family in Singapore.
